

Dec 17, 2015

I was getting ready for work and husband had come and asked me, if I still wanted a Divorce. I said I'm not in the mood to talk about it. I needed to get ready for work and he had to take our daughter to her 15 mo check up at 8:30am. (On Nov 11, I found out my ~~husband~~ was having an affair and since then asked to work things out) Things weren't changing so I asked for a divorce, he said the only way I would get a divorce is if I would sign over rights of my children to him). ~~We then argued and he left to the garage w/ my phone.~~ Came back an half hour later asking where I had gone Sat night (I attended a ^{company} Christmas party w/ a girlfriend) he got upset and then yelled about how I was being disrespectful. I was bringing my job into our affairs. My job (supervisor ~~etc~~) tested me and asked me if "I was ok." He again went off, asking who I had told about our problems. I was sitting on the couch, he pulled my hair and head to the left and whispered, If you take my kids away from you. I will personally kill you. The day you leave your job or walk down the street. You won't even know it."

After arguing it went to him taking me to the guest closet, continued grabbing my hair and hitting my head against the wall. He had the children stay in the playroom. Our 1 year old daughter kept coming in & out of the closet. Then he had me sit down, he was to my right between the closet door and I. He asked me a question and when I answered I looked down at the floor, he backhanded the top of my left head. I grabbed my head and he asked me another question. Again I was looking down and he backhanded my head again. He hit me (backhanded) a total of 5 times on my head. At that point, the maintenance man came to check on our water heater. He told me to not say anything and stay in the ~~closet~~. After they left he had calmed down. My phone screen had already been broken, so he said he and my son was going to fix it and run an errand. He was gone for about 2 hours. I was scared to go to the neighbors to call the police. When he came back, he acted as if nothing happened. I cooked us dinner and that ended our night. The next morning, ~~Dec 18~~, I woke up and started looking thru his phone, sent myself some emails and pics of other girls. He woke up and found me and got upset. I had recently put a lock on my phone. He had

.. asked me several times for the passcode I said you don't need it. I tried to grab my phone several times. He asked multiple times and asked "why are you provoking me? Give me the passcode".

I said "No". He then sent the kids to the play room I was still laying down on the Master Bed. He then grabbed the hair at the top of my head and pulled my hair harder than the day before. He grabbed something out of the nightstand. I didn't have my glasses so at the time I didn't know what he had grabbed. He then began pulling my hair again and started ^{trying to} stuff ~~stuffing~~ the sock in my mouth to cover my screams. He eventually was able to jam the sock in my mouth but I bit him. He pushed my head into the bed and said "I should hit you for that. I really want to hit you". Still holding my hair he then tried to put the sock in my mouth again. I grabbed his face and pushed it to the side, I think I scratched him in the process. He got very upset and tried to put his knee on my head. When he lifted his knee, I was able to push him and roll him to the other side of the bed. He started to come around towards me. The ironing board was next to me, I grabbed it and swung at him. I didn't ...realize the iron was on it. It flew and hit our 3 year old son in the knee (He was in the playroom when we heard him crying we ran to him and made sure he was ok. I gave him the passcode and the fighting stopped. He went back to the garage w/ my phone, deleted all the emails + pics came back and said he would take me to work.

At work, my managers were already concerned about me. I finally told my HR supervisor all that had happened and she drove me down to the Altamonte Springs police department to file a report.

~~He~~ I was able to leave w/ my kids. He continues to call me / text me. He ~~text~~ is now calling all my friends + family in the early hours of the morning nonstop between 2-4am